

COUNCILLOR JENNY HILL

Jenny Hill was first elected to the former Townsville City Council in 1997, and was re-elected for a second term in 2004, during which time she became the former Deputy Mayor.

She was born and educated in Melbourne, Victoria and graduated from LaTrobe University with a Bachelor of Science in 1981, before moving to Townsville in 1982. Jenny also completed a Masters in Public Health and Tropical Medicine at James Cook University.

Previously her employment included mining laboratories, DPI, James Cook University, the Pathology Department of the Townsville Hospital in Microbiology, and she was a serving officer in the Army Reserve.

Jenny is married with two children and has been active with school P & C's, as well as junior sporting clubs.