

VISION OF TOWNSVILLE'S CBD

Major new residential and accommodation developments are already underway in the Townsville CBD.

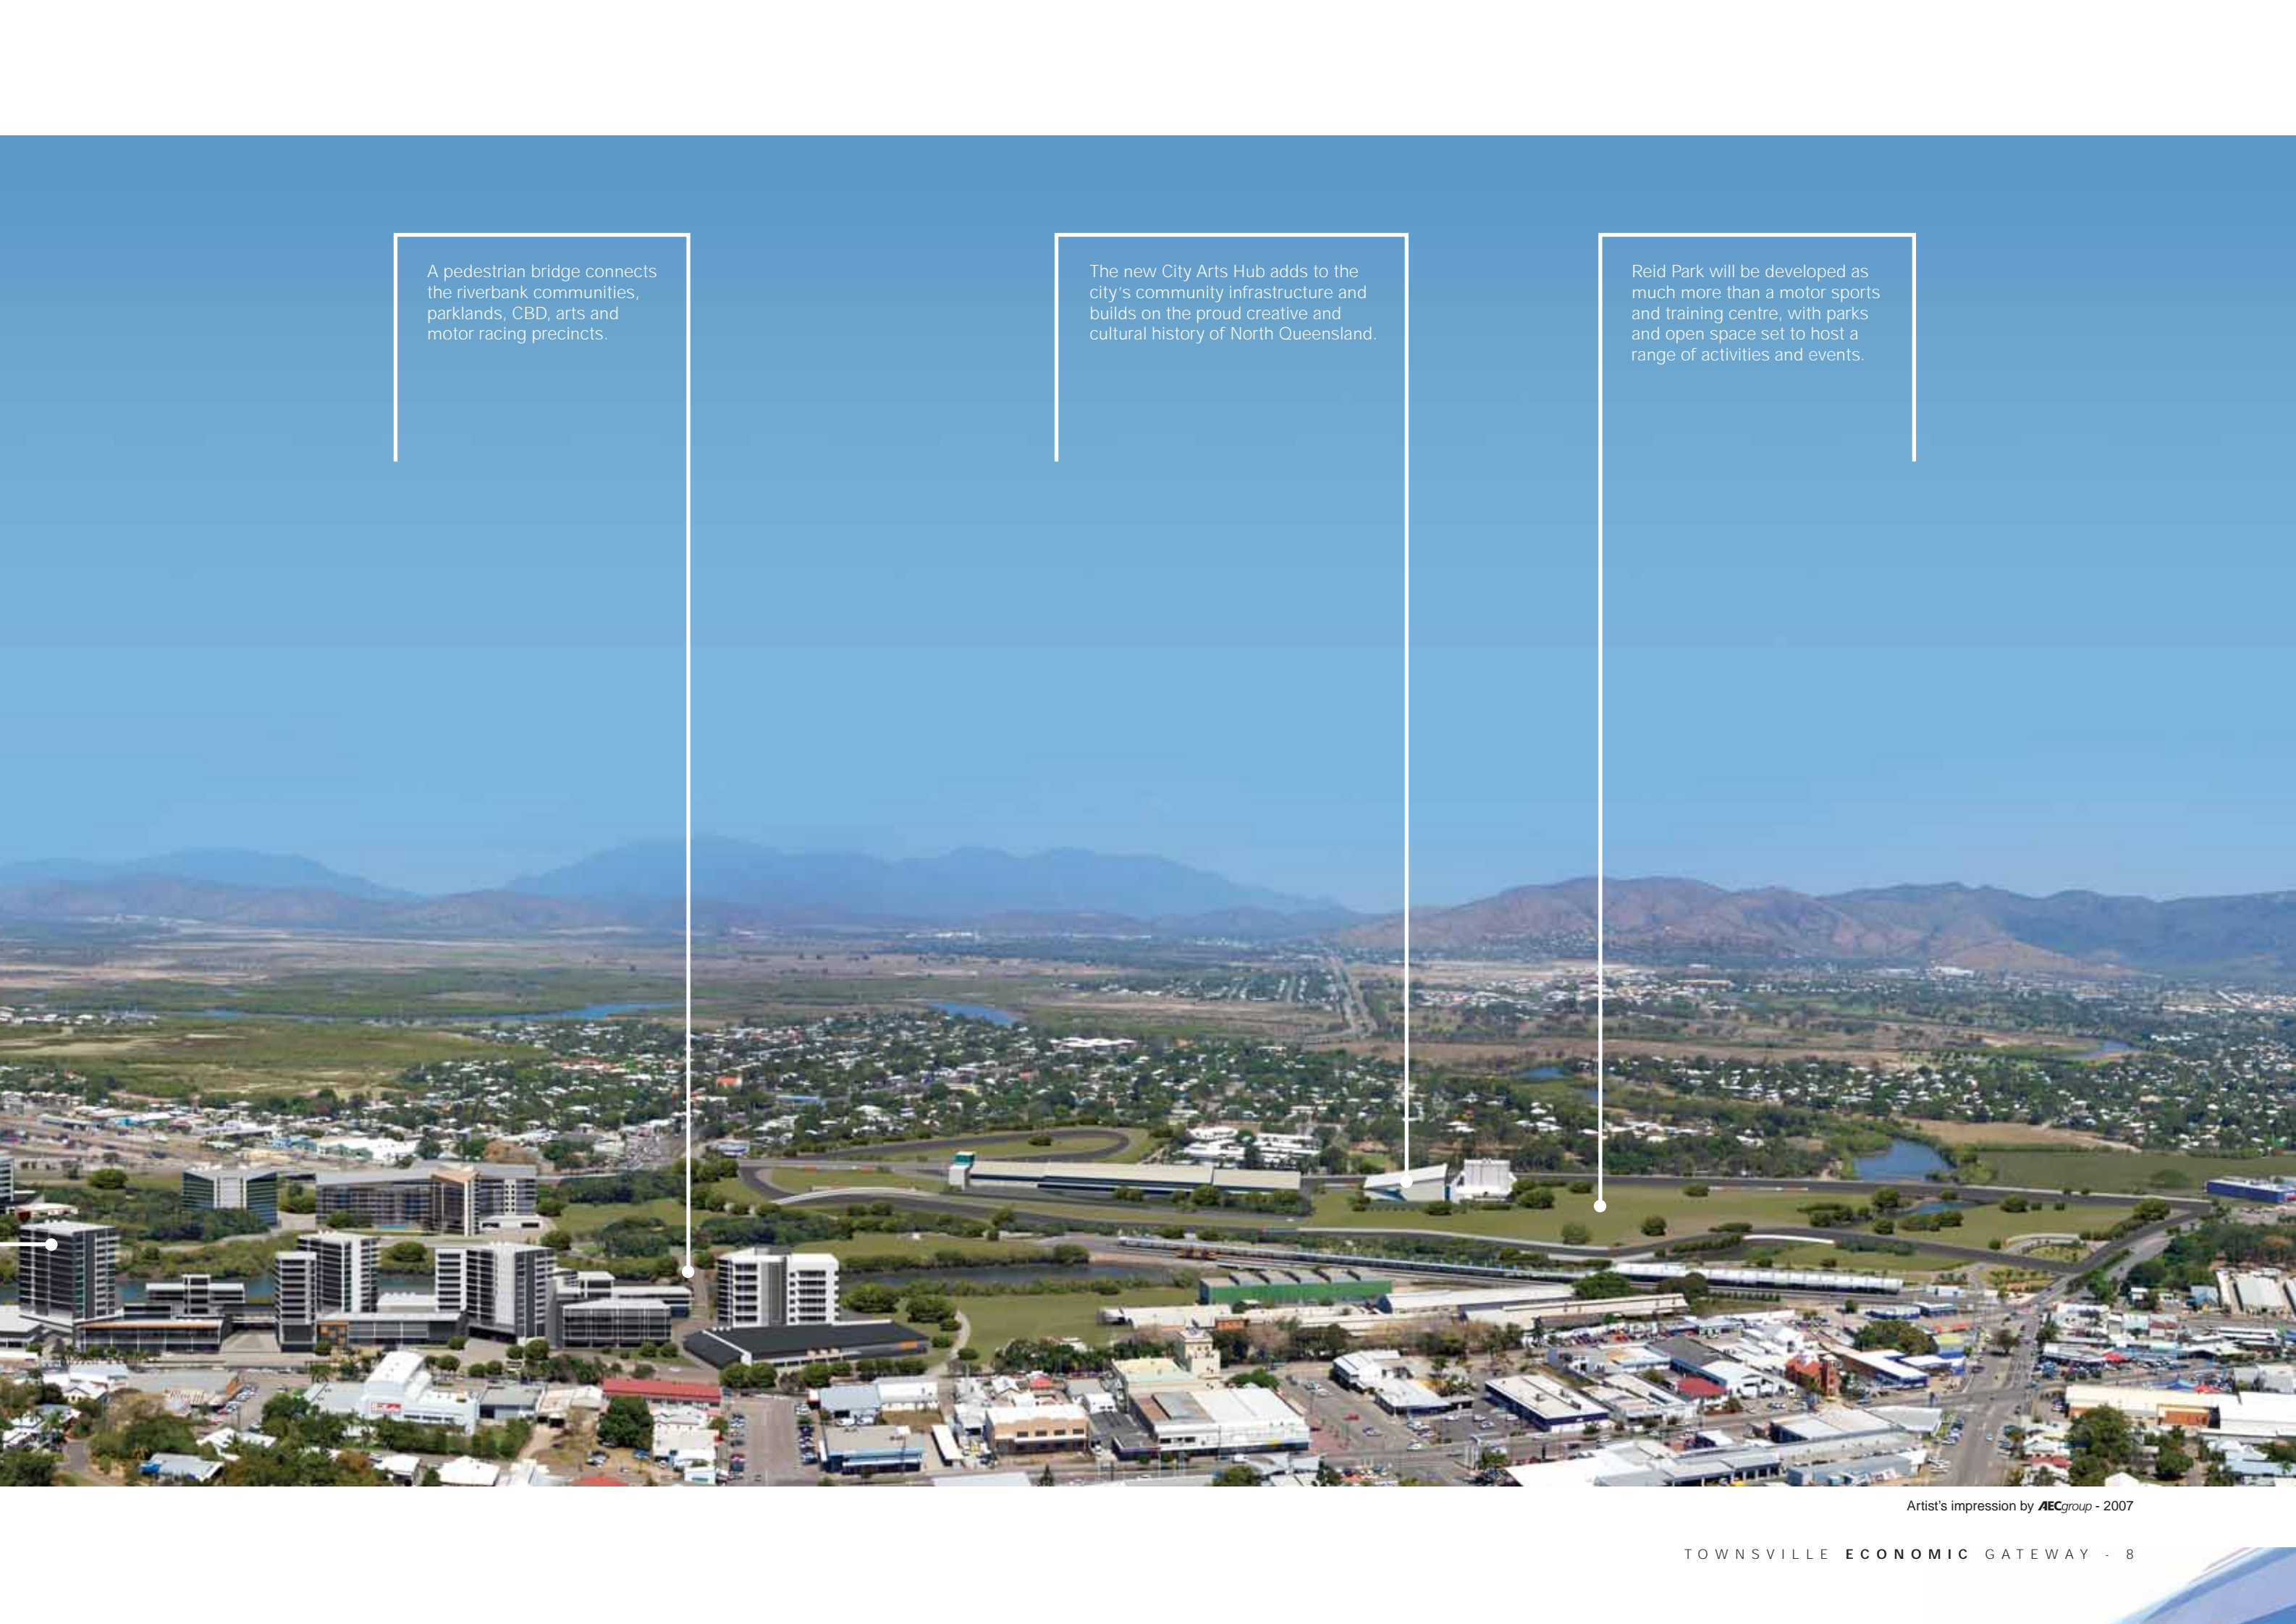

The new pedestrian bridge will unite Palmer Street and Flinders Street as the premier entertainment and dining precinct in North Queensland.

With a suite of new developments underway Palmer Street is consolidating its position as the premier place to stay when visiting North Queensland.

Flinders Mall will be transformed paving the way for major private sector revitalisation including the $260 million Flinders Plaza development.

Waterfront walkways linking work, leisure and residential.

The old railway yards North and South are being transformed into mixed residential use and public space. The developments extend the CBD through to Reid Park.

An aerial photograph of Townsville, Queensland, Australia, showing a mix of urban development, green spaces, and a river. Three white callout boxes with thin borders are overlaid on the image, each containing text. The first box on the left points to a riverbank area. The middle box points to a large, modern building complex. The third box on the right points to a large open area with a track. The background shows a clear blue sky and distant mountains.

A pedestrian bridge connects the riverbank communities, parklands, CBD, arts and motor racing precincts.

The new City Arts Hub adds to the city's community infrastructure and builds on the proud creative and cultural history of North Queensland.

Reid Park will be developed as much more than a motor sports and training centre, with parks and open space set to host a range of activities and events.